

OMB not the answer

Re: Quarry move a 'seat saver': Hudak, Review, May 5

Mr. Tim Hudak implies that the OMB is a better forum for area planning than elected officials. That should raise some questions as to whose best interest the provincial Conservatives are looking out for.

Relying on the OMB to decide the fate of a neighbourhood is the expedient politics of the under-informed, and the last ditch for a self-interested corporation.

I applaud the provincial Liberal government for listening, and stopping the academic/legal maneuvering that the people most affected did not want.

Ms. Donna Skelley: you have hard row to hoe if you think it's a good idea to put a quarry in a strategic location simply to reduce the cost of transporting aggregate to build a mid peninsula highway.
