

Gold Book
Ultimate Phone Directory

www.701.com

MORE THAN JUST A PHONE BOOK   • Party Planning Guide   • Menu Guides   • Local Web Guides   • City Maps   • Postal Codes   • Reader's Choice Guide

FLAMBOROUGH
REVIEW
www.flamboroughreview.com

<http://www.flamboroughreview.com/news/article/92814>

Quarry opponents raise dust at annual meeting

Dianne Cornish

Published on May 17, 2007

For the third year in a row, a capacity crowd filled the Lawson Park recreation hall to protest a proposal for a quarry in northeast Flamborough near Milborough Line.

"That to me was a gift," Graham Flint said following last Wednesday's meeting organized by FORCE (Friends of Rural Communities and the Environment), a grassroots citizen's group that has opposed the quarry application from the start. Flint, who chairs FORCE, was impressed by the show of support from area residents three years into the community's battle to quash the quarry plan.

"Despite the fact there hasn't been a lot of movement (on the application), people's resolve remains steadfast," he noted.

Flint also acknowledged support from political quarters. The crowd of about 190 applauded the efforts of Flamborough councillor Margaret McCarthy, who has been a strong advocate of FORCE from the beginning. She told residents that the City of Hamilton is refilling borehole cuts made on 11th Concession Road East earlier this year by the quarry applicant, St. Mary's CBM.

"The city is filling them and will bill St. Mary's, and after three years, if we're not satisfied, we'll bill them to repave the road," she told the crowd.

A public protest arose in February when residents learned that the aggregate company had drilled 40 boreholes into roads surrounding the proposed quarry site without obtaining the required permission from the City of Hamilton and Town of Milton. The tests were done to determine the weight-bearing characteristics of the roads, as part of St. Mary's haul route study. A company spokesperson said "a miscommunication" had resulted in the drilling being done without permits.

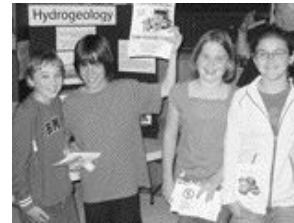

Ward 14 councillor Robert Pasuta, who lives near the proposed quarry site, also attended last week's meeting. Milton councillors Rick Day and Jan Mowbray were present as well.

"We want Milton (council) to take a far more active role in this," Day said, adding that he and Mowbray both ran re-election campaigns that included a commitment to fight the quarry.

"We're not the host community, but that doesn't mean we don't recognize the dangers to Milton," he said of the quarry's impacts. It's expected that the bulk of the development's haul routes will be along Milton roads.

"It's nice to see this broad range of political support," Flint told the Review. MPP Ted McMeekin (Ancaster-Dundas-Flamborough-Aldershot), while unable to attend the recent meeting, was lauded by Flint for providing "tremendous support" to the group by helping its steering committee members get access to provincial government officials who will eventually be involved in the application process.

Flint speculated that Hamilton, as the host community, will oppose the application for an Official Plan amendment and rezoning from St. Mary's Cement. "I'm feeling bullish," he told the crowd. "We'll be going arm and arm with the city in opposing this."

CLASS PROJECT: Our Lady of Mount Carmel Grade 6 students Daniel Rocchi, Milan D'Agostini, Daryl Watson and Sarah Goulet listened to the presentation at last week's FORCE meeting as part of a class assignment.

But the province, through the Ministry of Natural Resources, will eventually be asked to grant an aggregate license to St. Mary's and opponents to the plan will also need to plead their case at the provincial level, he warned.

FORCE members are convinced the process will end at the Ontario Municipal Board (OMB). In the meantime, Flint said it's vital that area residents continue to stay engaged. "Don't let this issue fall off the radar," he stressed.

FORCE members have consistently argued that the site is unsuitable for a quarry for many reasons, including the threat to area water wells, the potential impact on environmentally sensitive areas and natural wetlands on the site and the effects of a quarry on quality of life issues, such as quarry truck traffic, dust and noise pollution.

Late last year, residents bombarded the Ministry of Environment (MOE) with 650 letters of concern over St. Mary's application for a temporary permit to take water (PTTW). The company applied for permission to pump 2.8 million gallons of water a day for 20 days from the site in order to test a water recirculation plan.

"They (ministry officials) are paralyzed with fear," Flint said, noting that PTTW applications routinely draw "zero to 20 submissions."

The MOE, which initially was expected to respond to the application last December, likely won't rule on it until this fall, Flint predicted. McCarthy said the ministry is still working through submissions and has asked St. Mary's to do further studies.

The next public involvement in the process will likely be public meetings on proposed haul routes. St. Mary's is currently engaged in a transportation study covering the area bounded by the Guelph Line, 401, and Hwys. 6 and 403.

<http://www.flamboroughreview.com/news/article/92814>

© Copyright 2007 Metroland Media Group Ltd. All rights reserved. The reproduction, modification, distribution, transmission or republication of any material from this Metroland West Media Group website is strictly prohibited without the prior written permission of Metroland Media Group Ltd.

